

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND
RECRUITMENT OF LOCAL ECONOMIST
ASSIGNMENTS IN ANGOLA

The International Monetary Fund is seeking an economist to work at the Resident Representative (RR) office in Angola. The RR office is the primary channel of communications between the Angolan authorities and IMF headquarters (HQ) staff. Its responsibilities include maintaining HQ informed about economic developments and policies, as well as the social and political context in which these are adopted.

The selected candidate will support the RR and the various IMF missions visiting Angola as needed, through: performing analytical work, gathering news and data, updating databases, and maintaining regular contacts with technical counterparts in the government and other international organizations.

The ideal candidate will have: a Master's degree in economics/finance or higher academic degree; professional work experience; excellent macroeconomic and analytical skills; the capacity to work independently under the general supervision of the RR; and excellent oral and written communication skills (both in English and Portuguese). Ability to work under pressure as part of a team is essential.

Candidates who meet these qualifications will be invited to submit a sample of written analytical work and called for an interview.

Please send a detailed resume by September 30, 2015 listing your qualifications, previous work experience, two letter of recommendation, and indicating your telephone number and/or e-mail address where you can be reached, to:
