

Himino Ryoza is the commissioner of the Financial Services Agency, Japan's regulator of banks, insurance companies and capital markets, and is the chair of the Standing Committee on Supervisory and Regulatory Cooperation of the Financial Stability Board. He served as the secretary general of the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision from 2003 to 2006. Ryoza published in Japanese Aristide Maillol, a biography of the French sculptor, and Introduction to I-Ching: What if Confucius reads Sophocles, a book applying the Chinese Book of Fortunes to Greek tragedies. He graduated from the University of Tokyo (LL.M.) and Harvard Business School (MBA).