Together...spreading Smiles!
I am delighted to report that the Annual Giving campaign in the Fall generated a record $2.6 million in donations, helping to support 1,130 non-profit organizations across the world. This represented an overall participation rate of 43 percent, another record. I would like to thank all staff and retirees for their generosity, with a special mention to our fantastic “Ambassadors” throughout the Fund who have championed the program.

I was also pleased to join staff in the preparation of meal baskets during Thanksgiving for the needy families in our local community, to have packaged kits on Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Day for the victims of hurricanes in the Caribbean, as well as supporting women returning to the labor force on the occasion of International Women’s Day.

Again, I would like to thank staff and retirees for giving back to the local and international community in such significant ways. I am confident that, together, we can continue to improve lives and make the world a better place for all.

Christine Lagarde
Managing Director

The Fund made lasting contributions through management donations during visits to emerging economies in Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe, Latin America, and MENA regions. IMF Giving Together also disbursed $210,000 in community grants to 30 local and international charities to encourage economic independence through education and economic opportunities.

On behalf of my colleagues in IMF management, I would sincerely like to thank Fund staff, their families, and retirees for their generosity year after year.

The IMF Giving Together “Smile” Campaign broke the previous year’s record for staff participation for a fifth straight year. By the end of the campaign, which ran from September to December 2017, 43 percent of staff had supported 1,130 charities around the world.

Participation by Fund retirees was pivotal in achieving this record, as 45 percent of total donations were made by retirees giving to 653 charities and their favorite causes.

Managing Director Christine Lagarde praised staff and retirees for their record-breaking generosity, adding “these are record numbers, and you should all be proud.” She also announced a goal of 50 percent staff participation for the next campaign.

Launch of the 2017 Fall Giving Campaign

The launch of the Fall Giving Campaign took place on September 14 where we hosted 28 local and international charities representing a variety of causes, ranging from children and women’s welfare to education, animal rescue to mental health, the environment, and homelessness.

For the first time, a jazz ensemble from Wilson High School, a D.C. public school, and a children’s choir from the IMF Childcare Center entertained the audience.

HUMANITARIAN APPEALS

During FY2018, the IMF Giving Together program launched humanitarian appeals in response to two major global disasters, matched at 100 percent.

Famine in Sub-Saharan Africa and Yemen

In an emergency that the UN has called “the largest humanitarian crisis since the creation of the United Nations,” 25 million people in Ethiopia, Kenya, Somalia, South Sudan, and Yemen were on the brink of starvation. In response, an appeal launched in April 2017 raised $46,296. These funds were channeled to the affected population via Save the Children and International Medical Corps, international nonprofits supporting hospitals and providing safe drinking water and food.

Hurricane Maria

Last September, Hurricane Maria wreaked widespread devastation on Dominica. The UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Relief launched a coordinated response. A total of $31,514 in staff donations has been channeled to Global Impact’s Dominica Relief Fund.

Giving Opportunities

IMF Giving Together also offered giving opportunities for other disasters: Hurricanes Irma in the Caribbean, Maria in Puerto Rico, and Harvey in Houston, monsoon floods in South Asia, and earthquakes in Iran, Iraq, and Mexico.

Families have been displaced in the search for water and food.
Giving Ambassadors

In FY2018, we had champions in each department; they organized fun activities to encourage and recognize staff giving.

IN-KIND DONATIONS

Staff, their families, and retirees participated in various in-kind drives.

Spreading Smiles through...Volunteering

Several volunteering initiatives took place throughout FY2018 under the Min Zhu Volunteer Program, which serves the Washington metro area by mentoring children from less-privileged backgrounds and helping the homeless.

VOLUNTEERING PROGRAMS

Teaching Financial Literacy

As in previous years, IMF Volunteers teamed up with Serve Your City, a Washington, D.C., nonprofit, to offer two eight-week financial literacy courses to students from local high schools, introducing them to practical aspects of personal finance and economics.

Mentoring High School Students

In Fall 2017, the Legal and Communications departments began partnering with Woodrow Wilson High School, a public school in Washington, D.C., to help students develop their writing and critical-thinking skills. A group of about 20 volunteers assisted students in the classroom. The Fund also donated $7,000 and 20 refurbished computers to help establish a writing resources center. “This program is a great way for the non-economists among us to share our skillset with students in the community,” said Sean Hagan, General Counsel and Director of the Legal Department.

Young Economist Academy

Fund volunteers introduced local high-school students to the role of the IMF by designing a program to solve economic issues in a country case. The program culminated in student presentations, which were evaluated by senior Fund economists.

VOLUNTEERING EVENTS

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Annual Day of Service

On January 9, 2018, more than 400 staff, retirees, and BFSFCU Bravo team members volunteered to package 2,000 hygiene kits destined for the victims of hurricanes in Puerto Rico and the Caribbean. The kits were delivered to the beneficiaries by MAP International, a global nonprofit.

“Life’s most persistent and urgent question is: What are you doing for others?”
—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.
Preparing Meals for the Hungry

In May 2017, IMF Giving Together, with support from Sodexo, prepared sandwiches for people living in shelters. Some 250 staff and retirees came together to pack 2,000 lunch bags. The meals were delivered to DC Central Kitchen, which distributes meals to approximately 80 homeless shelters and afterschool programs in the Washington area.

Thanksgiving Meals for D.C. Families

In November 2017, Fund volunteers assembled 200 festively wrapped meal baskets containing food items donated by staff and retirees so local needy families could enjoy a plentiful Thanksgiving meal. They were channeled through Horton’s Kids, a charity that works with at-risk children in Washington, D.C.

International Women’s Day

In March 2018, staff partnered with World Vision, a global humanitarian organization, to pack 2,500 Women’s Hope Kits, to help women in our local community recovering from abuse, disaster, or poverty, by providing them with essential hygiene items and more. In addition to World Vision, three local charities were also the recipients of the hope kits: Calvary Women’s Services, Suited for Change, and Open Arms Housing.
